Career Start as Plant Breeder

The idea behind the KWS Breeders' Academy

Plant breeding requires a broad understanding of topics from agriculture, genetics (quantitative and molecular) and mathematical methods. University courses alone cannot provide the skills required for the role of the breeder. To close this gap, we offer an interesting combination of on-the-job training with university course attendance. This career entrance program takes two years and will be tailored to the individual.

KWS at a glance

KWS is one of the most innovative and long established plant breeding and seed companies worldwide. For more than 150 years we have been breeding and marketing high performance varieties for the modern farmer. Our key crops are sugar beet, corn and cereals as well as oil seed crops and potatoes. Our core markets are in the temperate climate zones of Europe, North and South America as well as China.

Our offer

- Participation in, and responsibility for, a small but real breeding program
- Training in two crops in two countries during two subsequent years
- Plant breeding courses at international universities
- Appropriate remuneration
- You will be located at breeding stations worldwide
- A flexible, individually tailored program, based on your existing skills and experience, enabling you to progress into a future breeder position

Your profile

- You would like to work towards better solutions in agricultural plant production
- You already have a degree in crop science, plant breeding, or in plant production majoring in plant breeding
- You also have an interest in applied genetics
- Maybe you specialised in a theoretical aspect of plant breeding but would like to broaden your knowledge as a practical breeder
